Foreword

Basic manuscripts for the three parts of this volume were prepared by a greater than usual number of colleagues. In addition to resident faculty members Martha T. Roth and Matthew W. Stolper, contributors were Jeremy A. Black (University of Oxford), Dietz Otto Edzard (University of Munich), Maureen Gallery, Hermann Hunger (University of Vienna), Burkhardt Kienast (University of Freiburg), Joachim Oelsner (University of Jena), Simo Parpola (University of Helsinki), Johannes M. Renger (Free University of Berlin), Francesca Rochberg-Halton (University of Notre Dame), Klaas R. Veenhof (University of Leiden), and Joan Goodnick Westenholz, some of whom made repeated visits to Chicago.

Thanks are due again to several colleagues abroad for their help in the preparation of this volume: to W. G. Lambert (University of Birmingham), who read the manuscript and made suggestions and corrections and contributed unpublished material; and to Klaas R. Veenhof and Simo Parpola for reading proofs and contributing important Old Assyrian and Neo-Assyrian material respectively. We have also profited from the suggestions of William L. Moran (Harvard University), who read and commented on the El-Amarna references.

Thanks are due also to Gertrud Farber and F. A. M. Wiggermann for help with the final checking of references.

Some of the words in this volume had been written, during the preparation of other volumes, by A. Leo Oppenheim; other words, during the preparation of the S volume, by Michael B. Rowton, to whose memory this volume is dedicated.

Provisional List of Bibliographical Abbreviations

The following compilation brings up to date the list of abbreviations given in volumes A, B, D, E, G, H, I/J, K, L, M, N, Q, S, Š, and Z and includes the titles previously cited according to the lists of abbreviations in Archiv für Orientforschung, W. von Soden, Grundriß der akkadischen Grammatik, and Zeitschrift für Assyriologie. Complete bibliographical references will be given in a later volume. The list also includes titles of lexical series; those that remain unpublished are quoted from manuscripts prepared by or in collaboration with Benno Landsberger.

a) in nominal constructions – 1' between two substantives: connecting a rectum to a regens, in genitive constructions, passim.

2' without antecedent, followed by a substantive in the genitive, expressing various types of relationship, such as belonging to, etc., often forming a compound (as indicated by the pluralization, e.g., ša bilti(m), pl. ša bilātim, as opposed to ša rēši, pl. sūt rēši) – in lex. texts usually corresponding to lú: see under the substantive, but note the corrections in MSL 12 243f.; for NA and NB designations of professions of the form ša x-šu, e.g., ša tābtis̪u, see the substantive; note that the meaning of ša la, when followed by a substantive, including infinitives, or personal pronoun, is "without."

b) introducing a subordinate clause with the predicate in the subjunctive: corresponding in bil. texts to lú (eme. SAL mu.lu) when the antecedent is animate, to níg (Emesal èm) when it is inanimate; also in combination with conjunctions, see adi conj. usage a-3' (adi ša), usage a-1' (adi muhhi ša), ašar conj. mng. 1k, ištu conj. usage d-1' (ištu ša), usage d-3' (ultu muhhi ša), usage d-4' (ultu agā ša), kī conj. usage b (kī ša), usage d (akī ša), kīma conj. usage c (kīma ša), usage f (kīmē ša), usage g (ša kīma, Mari, OB), libbu s. mng. 4a-2'd' (libbū ša); see also ašša.

Loanword from Sumerian, which itself borrowed the word from Akkadian šāpiru. The lexical evidence indicates that PA.É (as well as PA.AL) is to be read šabra (contrast aklu A disc. section), rather than šāpir bīti. This is corroborated by the occurrence side by side of ša-pir É, PA.É ša gagim, and PA.É ša ^dUTU in TCL 1 151:3, 16:f.; note moreover that Sin-bēl-aplim, the PA.É ša gagim, elsewhere (CT 52 127:6) is referred to simply as PA.É, and that the two subsequent administrators of the estate of the princess and naditu Iltani are referred to as PA.É and PA.AL respectively, see Renger, ZA 58 157 with n. 327.

There is no clear-cut distribution of the writings PA.AL versus PA.É, although the compound PA.AL.É occurs mainly in OAk. and in a single text from OB Ur, cited usage c-2'. The “Diri-writings” trying to “explain” the meaning of the Akkadian loanword made a distinction between an administrator concerned with agricultural affairs (PA.AL “overseer of the hoe”) and one concerned with domestic affairs (PA.É “overseer of the household”).

The word šabra (PA.AL) first occurs in ED Lu E (see lex. section); it is not found in the pre-Sargonic texts from Girsu. Although the OAk. refs. to šabra are quite numerous, no clear picture emerges as to the role of the šabra. Nevertheless, the ref. in CT 50 172, cited usage d, indicates his high position in the royal household comparable to that of the nu.banda in the household of Uru-KA-gi-na in pre-Sargonic Girsu, see Renger, RLA s.v. Hofstaat.

During the Ur III period the position of the šabra in the temple households is just below that of the sanga, see šabru A

J. P. Grégoire Archives administratives sumériennes 130f. (with previous lit.) and Gelb in Lipiński Economy 16. The position and functions of the šabra in the administrative hierarchy of the palace household(s) have hitherto not been systematically investigated.

The refs. cited usage a (all from southern Babylonia) pertain to the management of palace households. The office of šabru is not attested in the management of the agricultural and domestic affairs of the royal households in the later part of the Hammurapi dynasty (after Samsuiluna), as the investigation of N. Yoffee The Economic Role of the Crown in the Old Babylonian Period shows; the main officials are the mu'irru and the abu sābi. The refs. cited usage b (from Nippur and northern Babylonia, Sippar and Kish), where the PA.É writings are most common, show that most if not all of them belong to the realm of the temple household (including the gagū). The evidence from Nippur concerning the PA.É prebend (see šabrutu), which shows that a single person fulfills the responsibilities of pašišu, (estate) administrator, brewer, gate-keeper, courtyard sweeper, and bur.šu.mā, indicates that the administrative obligations at some of these smaller sanctuaries were rather limited, and the šabra's hierarchical position was therefore low (for a comparable situation in the case of the sanga in northern Babylonia during the OB period see Renger, ZA 59 119 § 141).

The title RN PA.AL DN Shalmaneser (III), administrator of the god Aššur Iraq 14 67 ND 1128 (translit. only), is most likely to be interpreted as PA-al, i.e., ukal, from (w)aklu A usage b-1'.

The rendering of the third radical as g is based on šad-da-ga-ad TCL 13 231:16; there is no proof for the etymology šattu “year” + qdm “preceding,” suggested by Ebeling Glossar p. 217, see Edzard, ZA 56 147. Relation to Syr. 'ešt^tqad(î) and Jewish Aram. 'eštāqad “last year” is not clear.

Edzard, ZA 56 147 with previous lit.; Kaufman, AS 19 96f. (suggests independent loans from Amorite into Akk. and Aram.).

In many of the cited refs. it is difficult to distinguish between šahātu "to strip off, remove" and šahātu "to wash" or the like, especially in view of the fact that kapāru too is used in both the meanings "to wipe off" and "to smear on." The refs. with fever, evil, and the like as object are cited šahātu B, and those refs. in which a part of the body is the object of šahātu, especially those which specify water or oil, are cited here. The OA refs. in the meaning "to clear" or the like may also belong with šahātu B. The refs. with water, etc., as subject or object, cited lex. section and mng. 1, may represent yet another word.

It seems therefore likely that either the original function of the š. was abandoned, or else she remained a popular rather than a professional diviner.

2. praying mantis: see Hh. XIV, etc., in lex. section; for context refs. see šâ'iltu.

In contrast to the šâ'iltu, whose activities are referred to in everyday contexts, the šâ'īlu is attested mainly in literary texts as the diviner consulted along with or after the bárû. Only in OB texts does a šâ'īlu appear as witness or as sender of letters, but without any clue to his function. In the West, as the letter from Alašia attests, the augur was called šâ'īlu.

If etymology is to be taken into account, as the bárû "inspects" (exta, oil on water, etc.), so the šâ'īlu "asks" in a process accompanied by a special kind or use of incense. This incense, called ma/uššakku, served as offering or in libanomancy. The incense may have been offered to the spirits of the dead in performances of necromancy, as is suggested also by the šā'ilu's association with mušēlū eṭenmi in the lex. texts.

The examples cited usage a show that the expression "šakintu of Nineveh" is an ellipsis for "šakintu of the central city (qabsi āli) of Nineveh," "central city" itself being an ellipsis for "palace(s) of the central city." The šakintu is explicitly identified as an official of two palaces in Calah (see usage c), and implicitly associated with palaces elsewhere (see usages e and f); thus even when no overt specification is given, "šakintu of GN" is always to be taken in the sense "šakintu of the palace in GN."

The fact that the šakintu Ahi-talli has

the title sekretu "harem woman" a year before her first appearance in the office of šakintu makes her connection with the royal harem beyond doubt. The refs. cited sekretu mng. 2b show that many harem women were indeed resident in palaces elsewhere attested as seats of office of a šakintu, as does the ration list cited usage d. The very large amounts of rations received by the šakintu (between three and ten times as much as those of the other women in this ration list), the fact that the šakintu always opens a new section in this text, and the range and volume of the business carried out by the šakintu, as well as etymological considerations (the analogy of šaknu), firmly establish the šakintu as the head of the harem.

It is here assumed that the two logograms ^dNIN.KILIM.TIR.RA and KUN.DAR stand for two homonyms šakkadirru (here A and B) because ^dNIN.KILIM.TIR.RA is listed among mammals (such as the šikkū "mongoose," ajašu "weasel," kāširu "marten," and tarpašu "otter"), whereas KUN.DAR is listed with lizards, each in a separate section of Hh. XIV. On the other hand, in Alu the tablet on reptiles and KUN.DAR is followed by the tablet on mongooses. The Akk. word seems to be a hybrid of šikkū and the Sum. qualifier tir.ra; however, it is possible that it is Sum. ^dNin.kilim.tir.ra "mongoose of the forest" which represents a popular etymology.

For the derivation of the word from Sum. ša-gina, which in turn is considered an Akk. lw. from šakinu, there is no evidence from the lex. texts except for the gloss ša-gu-ub in A VI/3, possibly error for ša-gin, see Civil, MSL 14 p. 440 note. If šakkanakku is derived from Sum. šakan + ak “he of the šakan,” šakan may stand for “donkey.” The endingless form ša-ka-na-ak in early OB Eshnunna, while unusual, is not likely to be a personal name.

The office of šakkanakku first appears in the Maništušu Obelisk, where two š.-s occur associated with the military: general of archers and lancers(?) respectively. In the Ur III period the term denotes the highest military (and possibly civilian) administrative authority in outlying areas, especially those east of the Tigris. The title šakkanakku is also used by foreign officials (especially those in Elam) during the OAkk. and Ur III periods in Akk. as well as in native inscrs.

In some OB texts the šakkanakku occurs together with the laputtū "sergeant"; note also the expression PA.PA ša šakkanakkim captain of/under the šakkanakku AJSL 33 236 No. 26:19, cited mng. 1b. In OB Sippar the šakkanakku is specifically connected with Sippar-Amnānum, which is considered a military garrison (at least in the time of Ammiditana and later). Note also that according to the literary tradition, Lugalbanda's companions are seven ugula's, seven nu.bànda's, seven šagin's ugula lú 5 5.ta.me.eš nu.bànda lú 600 600.ta.me.eš šagin erín 7 × šár 7 × <šár>.ta.a.me.eš an ugula over five men for each five (men), a nu.bànda over 600 for each 600, a š. over 7 × 3,600 for each 7 × 3,600 Lu-galbanda and Hurrum 67ff. (courtesy M. Civil), see Wilcke Lugalbanda p. 49. The šakkanakku is often associated with merchants (in texts from Sippar and from the south), and is involved in judicial matters. These functions, especially with regard to the river ordeal, seem to have continued beyond the OB period.

The relationship between the šakkanakku (attested for Akšak, Babylon, Eliš, and Sippar-Amnānum) and the šāpiru, šāpir mātim, etc. (attested for Dilbat, Kish, Sippar, and Suhu) is difficult to determine; note that in witness lists the š. is twice preceded by a rabiānu (CT 8 1a, PSBA 34 110 No. 3). In texts from the Diyala region we have evidence for a number of šakkanakku's serving at the same time (see mng. 1b-1').

The royal title or epithet šakkanakku goes back to the Ur III period. The rulers of Mari and of the Diyala region retained the title their predecessors had used as appointees of the Ur III rulers after they became independent of Ur III rule. The title "king" in these areas was reserved for the preeminent god of the state (note the similar situation with the title of iš-šiakku in Assur). In MB times the title šakkanakku became one of the royal epithets; it has religious connotations, as expressed in šakkanak DN in MB, NA, and NB royal titulature. Note especially the ref. šakkanakku zānin māhāzīšunu — š., provider for their sanctuaries Cagni Erra IV 12.

In ABL 302:11 (coll. S. Parpolo) read LÚ. AD₄(GÌR+ZA-tenū) = kumbulu. In Jean Tell Sifir 47a, etc., the witness's title is SIMUG, see Charpin Archives Familiales p. 283 sub No. 16. In Smith Idrimi 98 read LÚ.İR with Sasson, Lacheman AV 310, or DUMU.İR with Dietrich and Loretz, UF 13 208.

half to four cubits. Note that GIŠ.ŠĀ.KAL is used in UET 3 806 and 826 for GIŠ.SAG.GUL. While šakkullu wood is rarely mentioned in Babylonia after Ur III, Nuzi texts frequently mention it as used for table legs, chairs, pursītu bowls, and other objects, and for overlaying cheaper materials.

The title šaknu replaces šakkanakku, which becomes obsolete in the OB period and after that survives only as a literary term for governor, with the exception of a few 8th-7th century references from Babylonia, see šakkanakku. Thereafter šaknu takes over all the basic usages of šakkanakku, as can clearly be seen from a comparison with the list of different GÌR. NITÁ's in OB Proto-Lu (see šakkanakku lex. section), note also BBSt. No. 4 ii 14, BE 1/1 83 r. 12, AFO 23 13 ii 5, cited mg. 1b-3'.

In all periods, šaknu could refer to officials on two distinct levels of the administrative hierarchy: provincial governors (appointed by the king), and officials subordinate to provincial governors and other high officials. Starting with the MB and MA period, the sign sequence GAR.KUR, which originally stood for šakin māti, could be (and in fact, usually was) used for writing simple šaknu as well. This is quite evident from spellings like GAR.KUR KUR URU GN, from the alternation of GAR.KUR with ša-ak-nu and GAR in otherwise identical contexts, from the "equation" LÚ.GAR.KUR = LÚ.GAR-nu (see lex. section), and from the fact that the word šakintu "female household manager" could be spelled SAL.GAR.KUR-tú (see šakintu), though the reading šakin māti, q.v., for GAR.KUR cannot be excluded.

In the most widespread usage the šaknu is an official of relatively low rank. In Sargonid Assyria, šaknu's were the link between the administrative superstructure and the division of the population into kışru units providing taxes and labor in peacetime and soldiers in time of war. In Achaemenid Babylonia the šaknu was the supervisor of a hadru, q.v., a unit similar in function and organization to the Assyrian kışru.

In Sargonid times there are also šaknu's subordinate to the king or a governor in Assyria who conduct military operations in Babylonia and monitor the activities of Babylonian officials.

Note also that a šaknu in charge of a garrison (the É GIBIL armory of Nineveh) could also be called "governor" (bēl pāhi). Whether the unique occurrence of a "governor of the crown prince" (LÚ. EN.NAM ša DUMU.MAN) in ADD 152:4 represents a similar confusion of terminology remains unclear.

For the king acting as šaknu of the gods, see šaknu adj. For LÚ.GAR-*ki*n KUR in Bogh. and RS see sākinu.

Of the two words pagru and šalamtu, šalamtu seems to be the more literary and elegant; it is never used, as is pagru, for the carcass of an animal. After Shalm. III, šalamtu is rare in historical texts, except in parallelism with pagru, and is replaced by pagru, q.v. In lit. texts, LÚ. BAD is probably to be read šalamtu.

When šalāš, šalāšat is used with counted objects, the objects are normally in the plural, and follow the numeral. When “three” is used in a vague sense (i.e., “about three,” “two or three”), the numeral may follow the counted object. The gender polarity rule is normally observed, e.g., marrātum šalāš, but warhi šina u šalāšat, ilū . . . šelaltušunu, and šalāš meattim, šalašt-ūmī. Exceptions are maššarāti še-laltišina, mindāti šelaltišina.

In royal inscriptions where šallatu occurs beside bušū, etc., or in late texts, beside hubtu, it is often difficult to distinguish whether the latter refers to goods and šallatu to persons, or whether šallatu is a more general term for booty, including objects, livestock, gods, and prisoners. For the meaning "displaced persons" or the like in texts from the West, see Nougayrol, MRS 9 p. 49 n. 1 and Kestemont, UF 6 107.

The šamaššammū is the main source of vegetable oil in Mesopotamia. In Sum. its name is (še.)giš.ì “the (grain of the) plant of oil,” see Civil, Sumerological Studies Jacobsen 141 n. 34. Whether šamaššammū represents or was taken by popular etymology to represent šaman šammi “vegetable oil,” the similarity of the word to Semitic smsm, Gk. sesamon, etc., led scholars to propose its botanical identification as Sesamum indicum, “sesame.” Since no sesame seeds have so far been found in Mesopotamia in archaeological contexts earlier than the Sassanid period, whereas there is an abundance of linseed remains, it was proposed by Helbaek (in M. Mallowan Nimrud and Its Remains 2 618) that in ancient Mesopotamia oil was extracted from linseed, and the name was later transferred to the newly introduced oleiferous plant, sesame. F. R. Kraus (JAOS 88 112 ff.) and K. Butz (in Lipinski Economy 285 n. 84 and passim) maintain the identification of š. with sesame, on the basis partly of etymology and partly of the technical terminology used for sowing (sapānu) and harvesting (nasāhu); but these verbs are not sufficiently specific to apply to only one species of plant. Note, however, that of the two types of flax, the flax plant grown for its fibers was called gu, and its seed numun.gu = zér kití, see kitú mng. 1. Although šamaššammū is qualified as “white” in NB texts, it is not qualified as “black” and thus the argument from its color for its identity with sesame (Butz, ibid. 285 n. 84) is not decisive. Moreover, the fact that the maturing of linseed takes one hundred days (ibid. 386 with n. 361), as does that of šamaššammū, may provide an additional argument for its identification with one type of the flax plant.

While in most instances in the transactions, deliveries, loans, etc., the seed of the plant is obviously meant, whether for processing into oil or for use in some other form as food, and while occasionally, as in work contracts, šamaššammū is the material from which the oil is to be extracted, or is mentioned beside oil, it is often impossible to establish, as, e.g., in deliveries for making soap or pastries, whether the seed or the oil is meant.

In most texts šamaššammū is construed as pl., but in a few SB omens ŠE.GIŠ.ì is qualified by a masc. sing. adjective (harpu CT 39 20:137) or is in concord with a sing. verb (ima'id Thompson Rep. 196:7). Whether this represents an error or indicates that šamaššammū was also used in the sing. or that ŠE.GIŠ.ì here has a different reading (e.g., šamnu, ellu) cannot be determined.

In Nabnitu XXIII twice (at its first occurrence, and at line 66, which begins a new column), the scribe wrote šá-ba-tu; the emendation is based on the idiomatic phrases with šamātu listed in this section, and on the sequel, which includes šintu, etc., q.v.

Of the two different aspects of the meaning, one, "to strip off" and the like, is reflected by the Sum. equivalents šu.gíd (also qatāpu); and the other, "to flatten, depress" or the like, by the Sum. equivalent šu.ùr (also pašātu) and by the commentaries' equation not only with pašātu but also with tarāku, which said of parts of the body and the exta normally indicates depressed, sunken features. Since in many cases it is difficult to tell which of these two meanings is meant, and the usages are often ambiguous and overlapping, only one verb šamātu has been postulated here, although it is possible, as in the case of kapāru, that two homonymous verbs existed.

The lex. refs. applied to barley, karpatu, and other things listed in Nabnitu are obscure.

In Gilg. IV vi 25 the context is broken so that it cannot be proven whether the signs are to be read i-man-g[i-ga] (see magāgu mng. 1a) or i niš-mu[t], as cited AHw. s.v. šamātu I. In ABL 131 r. 3 read possibly lih(!)-mu-ṭu liššiu.

For another term for sun disk see niphu B.

In astrol., AŠ.ME is restricted to solar omens, but context indicates that it is both a day- and a nighttime phenomenon (see mng. 2b). When AŠ.ME signifies parhelion, the true solar disk is termed AŠ.ME SAG.UŠ (see Kugler, SSB 2 108-112), to be read possibly šamšatu kajamāntu (or kajāntu). Parallel omens substitute AŠ.ME ša ginā the solar disk, the normal one ACh Šamaš 3:9 and 12, also Supp. 2 32:43. Difficulties in the interpretation of AŠ.ME stem from conflicting evidence suggesting both readings šamšatu and šamšu. The majority of astrol. omens treat AŠ.ME as feminine, as is clear from the plural phonetic complement -tum, several feminine verbal forms, and the possessive suffix -ša, while others seem to indicate a reading šamšu. Note that in the same text (ACh Šamaš 2), AŠ.ME is clearly feminine in line 6 but AŠ.ME SAG.UŠ is the subject of the stative du'um and has the possessive suffix -šū in line 8. For the reading šamšu of AŠ.ME cf. šumma AŠ.ME u Sin šutātū if sun and moon are in opposition Thompson Rep. 176:6.

As personal name Šamšatu is hypocoristic for theophoric names composed with Šamaš.

Whether the assonance existing between Akk. ša'ām- and Sum. sa(m) (sa'ām?*) is accidental or due to loan (from Sum. into Akk. or vice versa) cannot be established, see Krecher, RLA 5 497, Wilcke, ibid. 506. In Sumerian texts and in OB legal texts from Nippur and occasionally elsewhere, the distinction is maintained between the verb "to buy," written with the sign NINDÁ×ŠE, and the noun "price," etc., written with the signs NINDÁ×ŠE.A.AN or NINDÁ×ŠE.AN; a reading šám, with final m, is established only for the latter, see Poebel, BE 6/2 p. 3 n. 1 and Falkenstein Gerichtsurkunden 1 122 n. 1. Note that in OB often both the verb and the noun are written with the same sign, šám. Note also in. ši.in.šám CBS 7001:8 but in. ši.in.sa₁₀.sa₁₀ ibid. 13. No refs. for šámu (ša'āmu) are so far attested in NA; the formulary of NA purchase and sale contracts does not use the verb, the transaction being described by tadānu “give away” for the vendor and by leqū “take” for the purchaser, see Postgate NA Leg. The translation “to decide, decree fate” of the phrase šimta (šimāti) šāmu and the corr. Sum. nam.tar (for the morpho-syntactical problems involved, see Edzard, Sumerological Studies Jacobsen 70ff.) is a conventional rendering for a specific aspect of Mesopotamian culture. It does not render the probably quite specific connotations of the idiom. Since the idiom is occasionally followed or preceded by a lengthy speech (e.g., KAR 1 r. 18'f., Gilg. VII iii 6, Cagni Erra I 39), it probably denotes the solemn pronunciation of binding words. Such an interpretation might also hold – at least partially – for meaning 3.

3. tablet container: see Hh. X, in lex. section.

In OB the šandabakku, like the GÁ.dub.ba in Ur III (see Falkenstein Gerichtsurkunden 3 159), is a functionary in temple, palace, and regional administrations, literally “the one (in charge) of the tablet basket,” from Sum. pisan.dub.ba.ak with aphaeresis. Some šandabakku's obtained major political standing: thus Babati, named in Labat Suse 1 iii 14ff., cf. Goetze, JCS 17 22f., and Anam, GÁ.dub.ba, later king of Uruk (Edzard Zwischenzeit 155). In MB and NB times, šandabakku designates the governor of Nippur. In later NB, however, šandabakku also refers to a high-ranking functionary – chiefly in Nippur, but occasionally elsewhere. The term šà.dub.ba.(a.k) in Ur III texts, sometimes considered as the putative ancestor of šandabakku, has to be translated “on the tablet.” The title DUMU É.DUB.BA(A) is to be read mār bit tuppi, an appellative designating scribes of apparently lower status and narrower competence. Most MB and NB occs. wr. GÚ.EN.NA, cited sub guennakku, are probably also to be read šandabakku.

Tracts of date orchards were assigned to šandanakku's and worked by nukaribbu's, but the relationship between nukaribbu's and šandanakku's is often unclear; note that the title rabi nukaribbi is attested only once in OB. The logogram SANJA replaces ENSÍ = iššakku in royal titles from Aššur-uballiṭ I on and is probably to be read iššakku (see iššakku mng. 1c-2'e'); therefore the reading of the logogram SANJA-ti/su in the royal inscriptions of MA and NA kings may also be iššakkūtu rather than šangūtu; a syllabic spelling occurs in Esarh., see iššakkūtu. From Sar. onward, the contexts in which syllabic writings of šangūtu occur, paralleling or replacing šarrūtu or malkūtu, suggest that reference is to the royal title SANJA (see šangū usage k). Only in contexts referring to service and care of gods and temples does šangūtu (wr. syllabically) occur in early Assyrian royal inscriptions, see usage c. Whether the refs. wr. with the logogram cited usage b are to be read šangūtu or iššakkūtu cannot be established.

Most probably issibnu is a form of la-bānu “to mold bricks.” The end of the letter shows that it was written at the time when river water had to be diverted to fields for irrigation purposes; the clay cleared away from the irrigation canals could conceivably have been used for molding bricks. The proposal that šapānu is a loan word from Aram. (AHw. 1170a) is therefore unnecessary; moreover Aram. š/spn is cognate with Akk. sapānu.

Syllabic spellings of šāpiru, frequent in the OA, OB, and MB periods, are rare in NB. As stated in aklu A disc. section, PA has the reading šāpiru in NB (see mng. 1) and in the complex šāpir (PA) rēdī in OB. The OAKK. ref. PA URU is listed in mng. 2d on the basis of semantic similarity to refs. cited mng. 1. For reading the title PA.MAR.TU as šāpiru see amurrū disc. section, and Landsberger Date Palm 58 n. 212.

The term šāpiru is never used in the sense of “executive official” applying to any person within the administrative hierarchy, as is aklu (see aklu A usage d).

The refs. cited mng. 1b may refer to persons who actually do hold the title šāpiru. However, a usage similar to that of addressing one’s superior as abu, bēlu, or awīlu, see Kraus Vom mesopotamischen Menschen 77 ff., cannot be excluded.
